“There is Always Something That Works”*
*Structured Flexibility and Common Sense in
Self-Regulation Intervention
Contextual Teaching

Participants will:

- (1) learn practical approaches to support individuals in the development of self-regulation;
- (2) identify key strategies for providing collaborative supports for individuals with significant challenging behaviors; and
- (3) have the opportunity to have their questions answered and get help with real situations that they provide.

Target Audience: anyone who works with children and young adults with all abilities and challenges (educators, service providers, care-givers, etc.).

Dr Tim Feeney is Senior Vice President of Belvedere Health Services in Albany, New York; an organization that offers substance abuse treatments and services for people living with mental and substance abuse disorders. Tim's extensive list of achievements include leading a strengths-based therapeutic and social service and educational program for at-risk youth and families with behavioral and educational challenges as Executive Director of Transitional Services for Youth and Families in Vermont USA; and his role as Director of the Overcoming Barriers to Learning Centre in NY – helping children with learning disabilities, autism and ADHD self-regulate behavior through the use of specific scripts and tools.
